Report on the User Bila, Named Carlos Albuquerque, and His Alt Accounts.

By the Moderation Team of the Overly Sarcastic Productions Server.

Abstract.

This document concerns a user named Carlos Albuquerque (his name on his very public blog) and his abuse of our space through serially evading bans for violating community rules (such as those about promotion of pseudoscience as well as harassing members). Of key concern are also the various threats he has made towards our moderators and community as well as embarking in efforts to violate the privacy and anonymity of the content creators whose community our server serves. This is an appeal to Discord to do something substantive about this person such as removing them from the platform and banning the associated IPs. It is also a document which will be edited to a form for distribution as useful to other parties in the future who have problems with this person.

Accounts in Question.

This report concerns a particular user who has been banned a total of at least three times on our Discord server and is known for antics within the wider community of online spaces we interconnect with, most notably those related to paleontology and prehistory topics. The three Discord accounts we have banned him under are as follows (called as they are at the time of writing this, April 15, 2024). Due to the known use of alts both in our experience and in the experience of those we communicate with, we suspect this is by no means an exhaustive list, nor that the accounts will not be edited in the future if they are not removed from the platform. The numbers below each screenshot indicate the permanent Discord ID number of each account in case of profile edits.

The above account was banned from our server on March 21, 2024. This was the ban that initiated the current phase of trouble for the moderators. It was banned on the Discord server for r/PrehistoricMemes on the same date because of a shared mod team member. It was reported there to moderators on February 16, 2024 for things that occurred elsewhere but was not taken seriously until the escalation of the situation in the OSP server.

This account, created within days of the previous one, probably as an intentional long-term alt, was banned after being identified as Carlos on April 12, 2024. It was removed from the r/PrehistoricMemes server likewise on the same day.

The third account, which is the oldest, has at some point been deleted. It was called Mullerornis#3039 and was banned from the server way back in 2020. This account was only rediscovered recently during investigation of the case. It is possible that Carlos has been banned other times without being recognized similarly, though no other account has ever linked his blog in the server besides the above three, except for one user being critical of his take on the Early Cretaceous mammal Ichthyoconodon. I will expand more on this issue in an appendix section though, as it is probably not of particular interest to Discord admins.

We are also aware of what is believed to be Carlos's previously banned Reddit account, u/warningtvtropes, which a user tipped us off too, though its history cannot be read.

His primary online presence is through several different blogs, which are linked here. These are relevant in identifying him in that he has often posted links to them as self-promotion under all three of the accounts he was in our server under. Keep in mind that some of his biology content is part of the speculative-evolution fiction genre and not genuine pseudoscience. Blogs that post this intentional fiction are being included here too. We are aware of the difference between these types of content. He also commentates on media and has produced a novel, which he sometimes posts the Amazon link to. In all of these places, he uses his first and last name, which is why we are comfortable using them likewise.

History In the Overly Sarcastic Productions Community.

The following will include only offenses and notable events relating to Carlos in the Overly Sarcastic Productions Discord and the correspondence related to it between Carlos and two of the leading moderators (Jacob Khan and Billywarren007) as well as with OSP themselves (which for the unaware is a YouTube group composed primarily of two individuals called Red and Blue; most interactions with OSP here involve Blue). The two reports by other individuals which were first given to us by informants reporting on Carlos will be included at the end of this document. When referring to informants, this document will not label them directly. This is because some users have been found to be intimidated by Carlos and considering his history of harassment, it would be imprudent to put that information out there. It will also obscure the number of people involved in informing on him. It will refer to members of our mod team, OSP, and the authors of the other similar documents directly by online names though as these are public knowledge. Should Discord staff want the account information of informants in their own investigation, we will provide them but not to anyone else.

The original account, called Mullerornis by label and by the team, was banned on July 14, 2020 in violations of our first and third rules, which relate to being kind to other members and maintaining academic integrity. The original contents of the events leading up to this have long-since been obscured and seemingly deleted in channel clean-up but the conversations about it in the staff channel still exist so it is possible to reconstruct what occurred from the mod team's perspective.

Following Carlos's initial mute and subsequent ban, he decided to go around the mod team (there is an appeal process that can normally be taken) and attempt to get the attention of OSP themselves (normally server members are not supposed to directly contact OSP because of their high profile and the problems that can cause). It is worth pointing out that he continued to send memes over the initial ban as late as 2022 with resumed emails over the newer bans following. Thanks to Blue for providing the below email screenshots.

Hello,
I discussed this with our Mod team – you were muted for a repeated breach of Rule 3: Academic Integrity. You have the Dyno Bot blocked, which stopped it from direct-messaging you about your first warning. The mute lasts for one week. In the future, please do not block any moderators or server bots, as this impedes communication and makes it more likely for this outcome to repeat in the future.

Your ban was not an accident. Following several verbal warns, an official warn, and a multiweek muting, the moderation team informs me that you continued to post unsourced and highly inaccurate statements to the myth and history chats, to the detriment of academic integrity and the frustration of server members. I am sorry that it had to come to this, but you were given multiple warnings to stop from posting unfounded and incorrect materials.

Hey, I would like to appeal to my discord ban again. A) My sources are all academically aproved (I'll gladly post them) B) my last gesture on the server was a sign of goodwill by redirecting conversation when asked, C) some of your staff harassed me.

The above was posted by Blue in mod chats on July 16, 2022.

Hello,
I'm the user mullerornis on discord. I understand the circumstances that lead you to ban me from your server some one or two years ago, and I believe enough time has passed for things to cool down.
Can I please return?

In the mod chats related to the incident, Blue also claims on July 24, 2020 (https://discord.com/channels/543171911530709002/543520909378584597/736283007781961820) that Carlos joined the OSP Patreon as a patron specifically to complain there about his Discord account being banned from the server.

The current “Bila” account of Carlos first promoted one of his blogs in the server on February 5, 2023 (https://discord.com/channels/543171911530709002/543283758137212958/1071800930489598052). For a little over a year, this account would periodically self-promote in the server, evidently unnoticed by the mod team. This account does overlap in self-promoted content with the Mullerornis one, which confirms their connection, especially through the promotion of the same novel, which helps to indicate this is not just two users using the same site.

I, Jacob Khan, primary author of this document, was tipped off by an informant on February 16, 2024 (message 1207837046299959296) that Carlos (under the Bila account) was in the r/PrehistoricMemes server and was a known problem in other communities. We received the report from Tumblr account Dilo's Insanity on Carlos's history but the r/PrehistoricMemes mod team did not see this account as doing anything wrong locally and so decided not to act but to remain suspicious in case anything occurred.

An additional informant tipped us off to Carlos's presence in the OSP server's #pre-history channel on March 21, 2024. Carlos had posted a link to one of his articles on Ichthyoconodon, as displayed below:

The conversation that followed involved a user picking apart the claims of the article and taking note of its improper scientific methodology, jumping to wild conclusions on fragmentary remains with solutions that lacked evidence, noting that it also was not confirmed by the existing scientific literature (Meng et al. 2006). Another user recognized the blog as being Carlos's and called it out, saying also that Carlos was a bad person and that the blog had a history of counterfactual claims. Said user then purportedly sent out a document in DMs to the previous user, which was presumably the one we were sent that same day, which is labeled "The Carlos Files" and distributed as a PDF.

Carlos messaged one of our moderators promptly to tell us to stop this user for spreading slander and proceeded to fight the user for slandering them in our channel. We asked said user for the file and considered it significant evidence that we did not want Carlos in our community. Keep in mind, the team had essentially forgotten the Mullerornis account and so this was not made in light of his previous ban. Since Carlos was evidently a known figure as the document (included below) demonstrated and because of his history of spreading pseudoscience, harassment and calling authorities and workplaces on online detractors, as well as having written a fan-fiction about the sexual violation of minors all as purported in this document, we decided that this was a special case where outside information warranted taking action. We banned the Bila account. I also banned it at the r/PrehistoricMemes server.

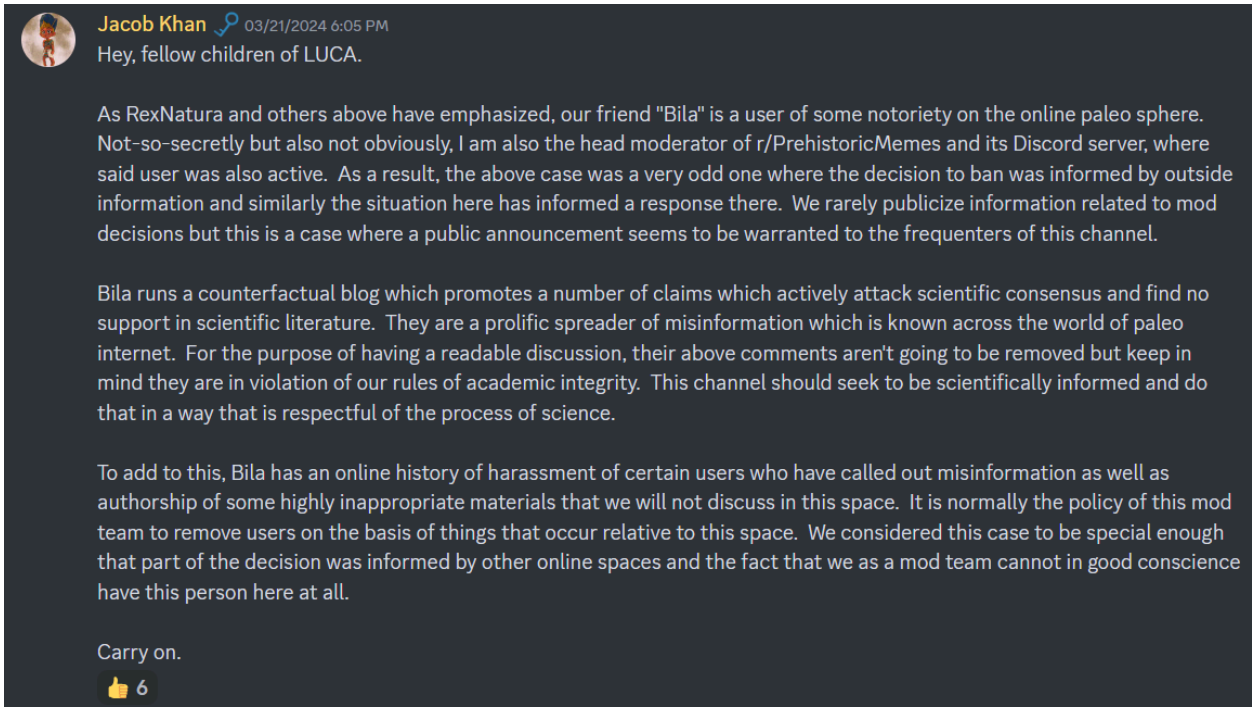
Because he was a known figure and the case was unusual, the team decided to leave a message for the viewers of the channel.



Jacob Khan 03/21/2024 6:05 PM
Hey, fellow children of LUCA.
As RexNatura and others above have emphasized, our friend "Bila" is a user of some notoriety on the online paleo sphere. Not-so-secretly but also not obviously, I am also the head moderator of r/PrehistoricMemes and its Discord server, where said user was also active. As a result, the above case was a very odd one where the decision to ban was informed by outside information and similarly the situation here has informed a response there. We rarely publicize information related to mod decisions but this is a case where a public announcement seems to be warranted to the frequenters of this channel.
Bila runs a counterfactual blog which promotes a number of claims which actively attack scientific consensus and find no support in scientific literature. They are a prolific spreader of misinformation which is known across the world of paleo internet. For the purpose of having a readable discussion, their above comments aren't going to be removed but keep in mind they are in violation of our rules of academic integrity. This channel should seek to be scientifically informed and do that in a way that is respectful of the process of science.
To add to this, Bila has an online history of harassment of certain users who have called out misinformation as well as authorship of some highly inappropriate materials that we will not discuss in this space. It is normally the policy of this mod team to remove users on the basis of things that occur relative to this space. We considered this case to be special enough that part of the decision was informed by other online spaces and the fact that we as a mod team cannot in good conscience have this person here at all.
Carry on.

We were aware Carlos had an alt in the server somewhere pretty much immediately as he very clearly saw the message and was able to react to it and contact moderators. At least four moderators were messaged in response to the situation. The most extensive messages were those with Billywarren007 and Jacob Khan, who are contributing to this document. The following constitutes the entire DM history with first Jacob and then Billy. Pay attention to Carlos's serial use of threats, mostly of the legal variety, towards the mod team. Both of us received a document from Carlos that he used as a legal defense to his innocence with the insinuation that it was about the pedophilia-story allegations. This document is… 61 pages of assorted things, including criminal investigation reports and various pieces of evidence from different places online. Suffice it to say, it's essentially meaningless to us. If anyone is interested in reviewing it to assess this idea, it will all be included at the bottom of this document.

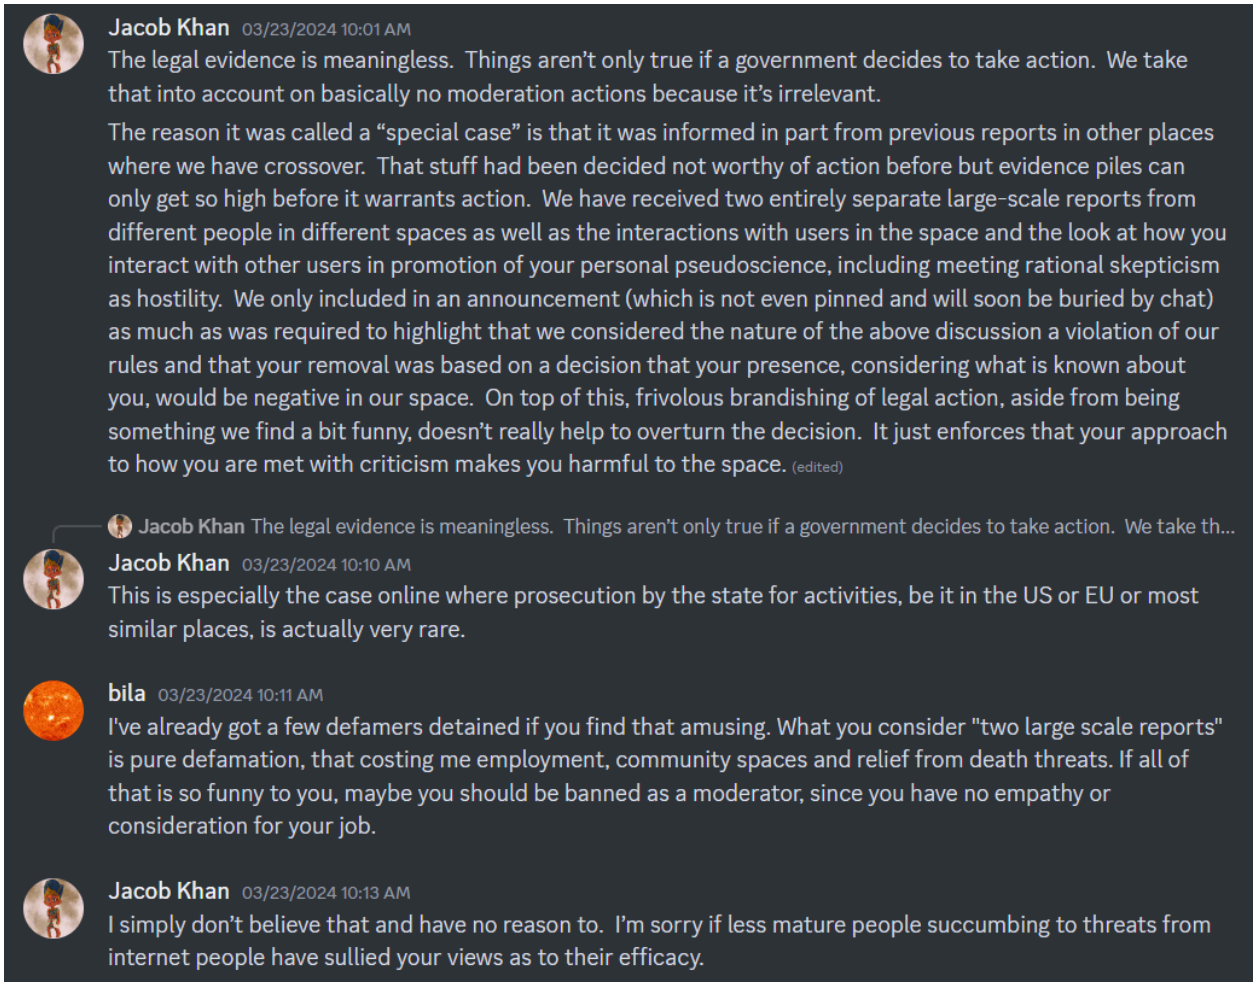
Again, see my behaviour on your servers, I was never disruptive, never harassed anyone. Then bozo shows up making accusations that would have landed me in jail if they were true. I even gave you LEGAL EVIDENCE. Claiming I'm "a special case" worth of ostracism is madness, against all evidence. On the other hand, people harass me and defame me



Jacob Khan 03/23/2024 10:01 AM
The legal evidence is meaningless. Things aren't only true if a government decides to take action. We take that into account on basically no moderation actions because it's irrelevant.
The reason it was called a "special case" is that it was informed in part from previous reports in other places where we have crossover. That stuff had been decided not worthy of action before but evidence piles can only get so high before it warrants action. We have received two entirely separate large-scale reports from different people in different spaces as well as the interactions with users in the space and the look at how you interact with other users in promotion of your personal pseudoscience, including meeting rational skepticism as hostility. We only included in an announcement (which is not even pinned and will soon be buried by chat) as much as was required to highlight that we considered the nature of the above discussion a violation of our rules and that your removal was based on a decision that your presence, considering what is known about you, would be negative in our space. On top of this, frivolous brandishing of legal action, aside from being something we find a bit funny, doesn't really help to overturn the decision. It just enforces that your approach to how you are met with criticism makes you harmful to the space. (edited)

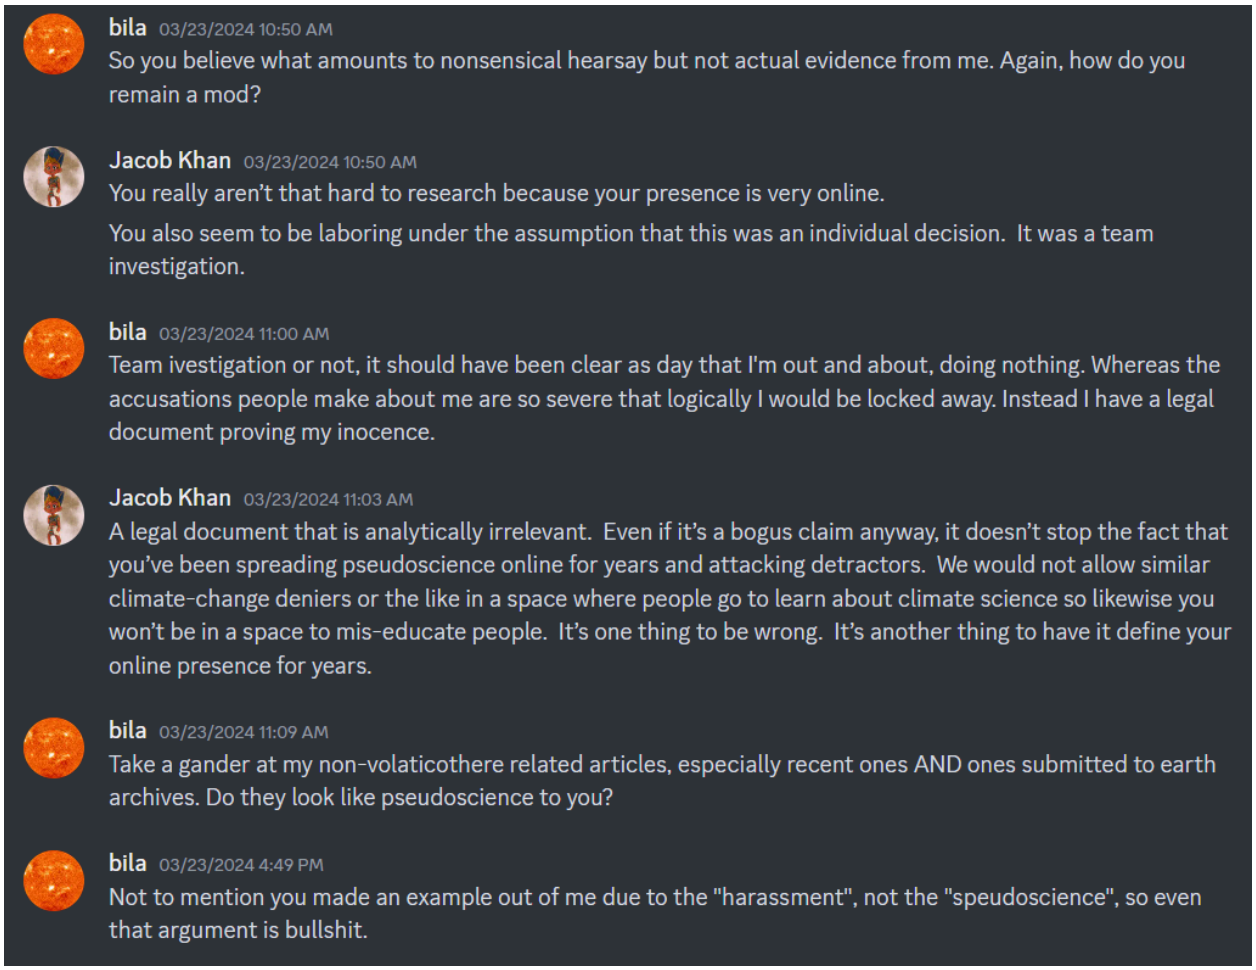
Jacob Khan 03/23/2024 10:10 AM
This is especially the case online where prosecution by the state for activities, be it in the US or EU or most similar places, is actually very rare.

bila 03/23/2024 10:11 AM
I've already got a few defamers detained if you find that amusing. What you consider "two large scale reports" is pure defamation, that costing me employment, community spaces and relief from death threats. If all of that is so funny to you, maybe you should be banned as a moderator, since you have no empathy or consideration for your job.

Jacob Khan 03/23/2024 10:13 AM
I simply don't believe that and have no reason to. I'm sorry if less mature people succumbing to threats from internet people have sullied your views as to their efficacy.



bila 03/23/2024 10:50 AM
So you believe what amounts to nonsensical hearsay but not actual evidence from me. Again, how do you remain a mod?
Jacob Khan 03/23/2024 10:50 AM
You really aren't that hard to research because your presence is very online.
You also seem to be laboring under the assumption that this was an individual decision. It was a team investigation.
bila 03/23/2024 11:00 AM
Team ivestigation or not, it should have been clear as day that I'm out and about, doing nothing. Whereas the accusations people make about me are so severe that logically I would be locked away. Instead I have a legal document proving my inocence.
Jacob Khan 03/23/2024 11:03 AM
A legal document that is analytically irrelevant. Even if it's a bogus claim anyway, it doesn't stop the fact that you've been spreading pseudoscience online for years and attacking detractors. We would not allow similar climate-change deniers or the like in a space where people go to learn about climate science so likewise you won't be in a space to mis-educate people. It's one thing to be wrong. It's another thing to have it define your online presence for years.
bila 03/23/2024 11:09 AM
Take a gander at my non-volaticothere related articles, especially recent ones AND ones submitted to earth archives. Do they look like pseudoscience to you?
bila 03/23/2024 4:49 PM
Not to mention you made an example out of me due to the "harassment", not the "speudoscience", so even that argument is bullshit.

A few friends of mine in the server noted a call out post claiming I harassed people; in reality, it's people sending me death threats. Please remove that if I'm not to return

An informant tipped us off once again on April 12, 2024 that Carlos was in the server self-promoting by his Itsaliving account. Action was taken and this time a larger investigation was started as the case got the attention of the mod team but also of OSP for its peculiarity, especially regarding the previous legal threats and known history of Carlos via the other dossiers for invading detractors' privacy, something OSP was worried about as anonymous public figures. Information-sharing began and we realized we knew more about Carlos collectively than individually and that the situation was exceptional. In the prehistory channel, a new announcement was made calling for people to report any information they had. That message is below. Carlos became aware of this message quickly once again.

Billywarren007 04/13/2024 8:54 PM
Hey everyone just a quick one, as you know we recently had an infamous pseudo-paleo fan on this server known for spreading misinformation and harassment of people who disagree with them. If they do anything to harass you or if you suspect they have tried to get back on the server feel free to send me a DM so I can investigate further. I am aware of his reputation within the field and am more than ready to help anyone who has been targeted by this individual, we have banned him 3 times at this point and are ready to do it again if he appears. Other than that keep talking about awesome dinosaurs

But he said he already blocked you, so I think that's a moot point.

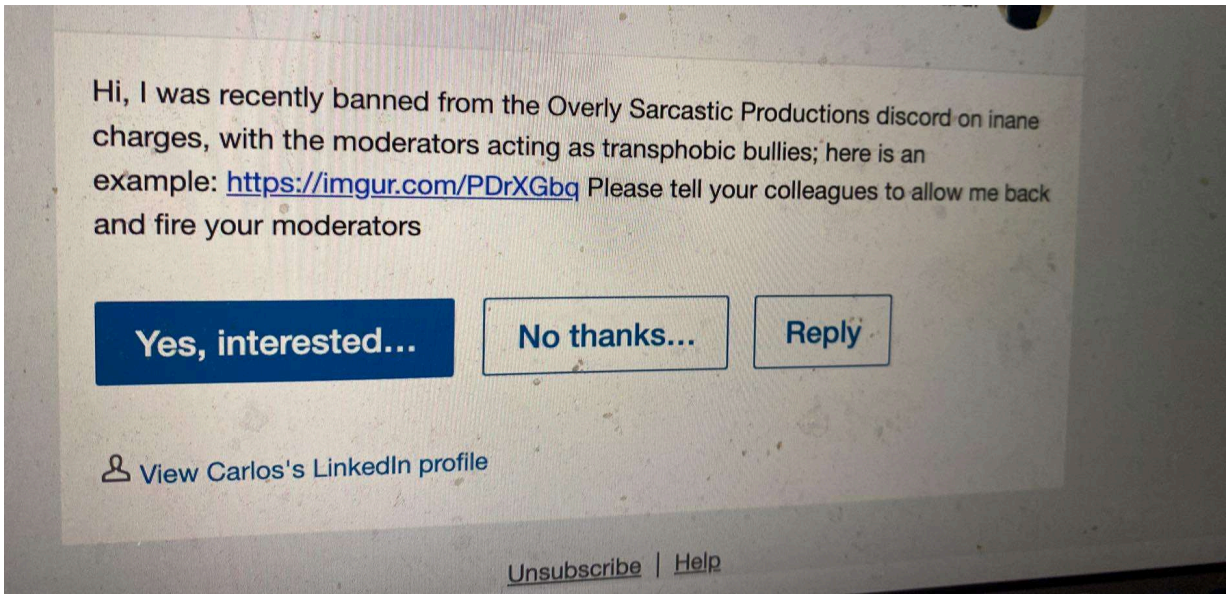
Following the hieroglyphic Loss display, Billy blocked Carlos to be done with him. The above referenced harassment of OSP happened in the middle of these conversations and Blue notified us. Carlos managed to find the LinkedIn profile of Indigo, OSP's editor and producer and attempted to appeal directly there, deeply breaking what we as a community consider acceptable boundaries.



Hi, I was recently banned from the Overly Sarcastic Productions discord on inane charges, with the moderators acting as transphobic bullies; here is an example: https://imgur.com/PDrXGbq Please tell your colleagues to allow me back and fire your moderators

What We Want.

The team collectively does not take any of Carlos's legal threats seriously (and they have even become a topic of jokes) but does take seriously the fact that he is very much willing to invade people's private lives over online spats in deeply violating ways. His continued presence on the platform is dangerous for the privacy and safety of others as well as their rights to not be harassed or be forced to engage with pseudoscience in an academic-lite space. The fact that as shown in the attached sources below he has a well-documented history of violating the real-world lives of users through reporting people to authorities over online arguments, contacting employers, inciting fear through threatening bogus legal action like a crummy scam email, and now attempting to break into the space of identity-protected public figures all shows that the problem has moved beyond one of simple management of good community spaces and into one of community safety. We ask Discord admins to please remove all Carlos-associated accounts and to take whatever action in the background such as IP-banning can be best done to ensure he continues to stay off the site.

Aside from being attached to a Discord report, this document will be distributed back to our various informants who can do what they want with it. Spaces where Carlos is relevant are welcome to use any of the attached information to help keep him out. We hope that as a gesture of friendship, it can also help solidify new ties with those communities since collaborating on information has already been useful to us here.

Referenced Additional Documents.

The following are the other two previous major dossiers on Carlos. Anyone seeking a full understanding of the issue should read these as well as they illuminate different facets to the situation from our case. If not for some of what is contained in these, it is doubtful we would know how serious to take the situation.

The first major dossier on Carlos we received was “The Carlos Compendium,” which is linked here. This Tumblr post from December 27, 2018 outlines most of the major old issues about Carlos and aside from documenting his misinformation and his status as having been banned from Wikipedia over it, provides the major background on the idea that he wrote a pedophilic rape fan-fiction, something which while far beyond the bounds of our own case was certainly a major point in determining that Carlos’s presence was a community safety issue.
Dilo's Insanity — The Carlos Compendium (tumblr.com)

The second was “The Carlos Files,” distributed as a PDF document and written apparently anonymously though I have since managed to learn it was written by paleoartist Armin Reindl who himself is a notable internet personality. It details how Carlos has harassed individuals, including the author, with frivolous law-enforcement action and false reporting to give them trouble on social media for questioning him. It also shows how he has tainted online search results about topics such as volaticotheres by commissioning artists to draw them to his insane personal reconstructions, which now are the first things that come up on Google when you search certain genera. Since this document is not stored online as far as I can tell, for ease of use here, I’ve done that at the link below on Keep & Share. Should Reindl prefer it not be there for whatever reason, I’ll remove it.
https://www.keepandshare.com/doc27/view.php?id=114687&da=y

Finally, there is the defense account of Carlos himself, which is a pile of legal documents and copies of internet contents. We believe that since he sent this out to multiple of us as a defense, it is something he is OK with in the public eye and so I will include the link here based on that assumption. If Carlos reaches out and says this needs to be removed because it is personal information, he can simply disable or change the link to these documents because this is his hosting site.

Follow-Up Content from April 16, 2024.

Everything below here was not part of the original report to Discord and was not included in the original distribution of the document.

An additional Discord account associated with Carlos was identified shortly after the finalization of the above report and was banned from the server today. It posted links to Carlos's blog content but of particular interest is the fact that his name "Carlos Albuquerque" does not appear in the thumbnails.

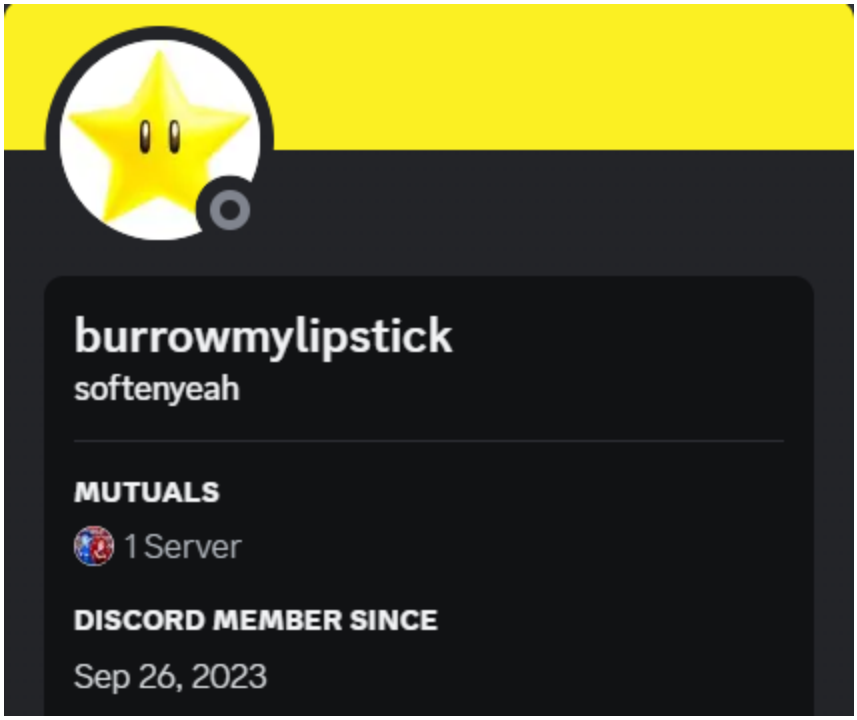
This is an example of one of these thumbnails by this account. This was actually posted essentially unnoticed two messages above Billy's announcement in the prehistory channel following the banning of the Itsaliving account. This means that this alternative alt was already active before the removal of the previous one. "Multituberculate Earth" is one of Carlos's spec-evo projects. It is believed that he may be transitioning thumbnails away from using his name directly so as to detach his works from the controversy associated with the name "Carlos Albuquerque." The account information is as follows and the permanent Discord ID is 1156229017779834890.



Aside from this, a more substantial list of accounts for Carlos on various platforms was identified through his Carrd page, found separately by both one of our team members and one of our informants, which is posted as it currently is below, though of course things may change in the future. Also of note to our community in particular, which includes many artists who take commissions, was the nature of how Carlos commissions art, which deserves some comments. As noted in the “The Carlos Files” by Armin Reindl, Carlos has commissioned art of a variety of creatures which he uses on his web media and Reindl points out, correctly, that through Carlos’s successful use of SEO, this means that some animals like his favorite volaticotheres are incorrectly depicted in their first results on Google Images.

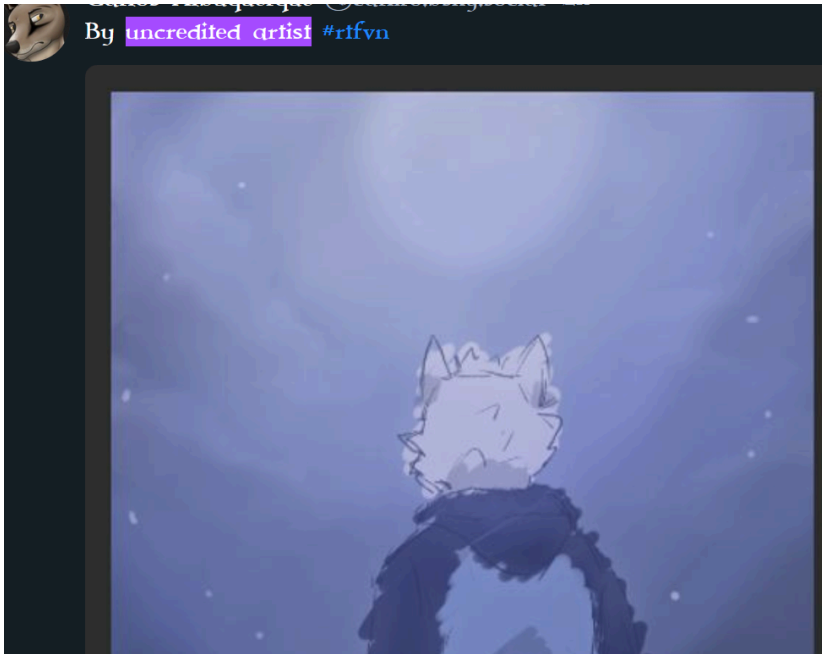
The above is my top results for Ichthyoconodon on Google Images. The first and fourth images are both based on Carlos’s personal reconstruction of the animal with paleontologically unsupported bat-like wings enabling powered flight. The fourth is on Carlos’s blog directly while the first is certainly taken from Carlos’s blogs where it can also be found used a lot but it is unclear if the writer of the article on the prehistoric-life-themed world-building wiki it’s hosted on is him. The Volaticotherium article on the same site also uses art originating from Carlos’s blogs and both articles are written with the assumption that his reconstructions are correct. The middle two images here are simply of the existing fossil teeth of Ichthyoconodon and a fairly standard scientifically-based reconstruction. Much of the rest of the search results are a relatively even mix of Carlos’s reconstruction and that of the scientists such as Meng who actually worked on the specimen. This is how Carlos spreads his pseudoscience: by using artists to make nice pictures that other places use. The two source dossiers by Reindl and Dilo commentate on this at much greater length than needs to be done here and we recommend that scientifically-concerned moderators review the issues described in those.

However, another issue which has not been commented on significantly regarding this art is that it appears to be frequently uncredited. The below is one such example from his Bluesky handle @carlito.bsky.social which opts to describe a work with the actual label “uncredited artist.”



By itself of course not being able to find the artist of a piece is not particularly a big deal but it's worth noting that Carlos does this 22 times on the profile. His blog content itself generally, to its full credit, attempts attributions to art used, though sometimes if he can't find the source of art, he simply writes that the source is unknown. It is unclear generally if Carlos has the permission to use all the art that he does, especially considering how a certain amount of it comes from sources he evidently does not know. He most likely does have the specific permission to use the art he's commissioned. Both of the images in my previous Google Images search showing his reconstruction of Ichthyoconodon were done by Julio Lacerda whom he has diligently credited (Lacerda also writes his name in the corner of the pieces though this is often cropped out as they are used for different things). In assessing Carlos's use of art, it is worth taking it case by case. He seemingly has permission to use much of it and seemingly lacks it for much of it as well.

Follow-Up Content from April 18, 2024

Carlos reached out to moderator Mura yesterday and had the following conversation with her over two days, for which there was interest attaching to this document, notably due to Carlos's use of suicide bait and the information it provides confirming his continued use of alts and as a sample of his pattern of messaging for use in future identification.

Follow your lead and delete the mobposts at the absolute minimum. I haven't harassed anyone in your server, I expect common courtesy
Billywarren007 04/13/2024 9:55 PM

The reason I was banned in the first place was due to 'pseudoscience' (presenting a hypothesis, but fair enough) and due to allegations of harassment (completely false; I sent a legal document proving my innocence, which is alluded to by the conversation; note that again I was never disruptive in the server, and my posts still remain there to prove it). In light of the behaviour of this person and Jacob Khan, it seems your staff is dealing with problems of professionalism and unfair ostracism.

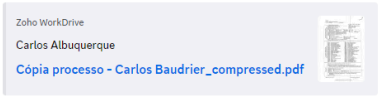
Oh, and I've received death threats due to mob posts by these two staff members, and they refuse to acknowledge them.

MURA-128 Today at 1:43 PM
I acknowledge your concerns, but it's essential to recognize that the ban was implemented following our established rules concerning pseudoscience and harassment. While I appreciate your attempt to present a counter to it, it's crucial to adhere to our community standards, prioritizing accuracy and reliability in academic discourse.

Regarding your own harassment allegations, I urge you to provide, or re-provide any pertinent and independently verifiable evidence supporting your innocence through the designated for thorough examination. We take such matters seriously, striving to ensure fairness and justice within our community.

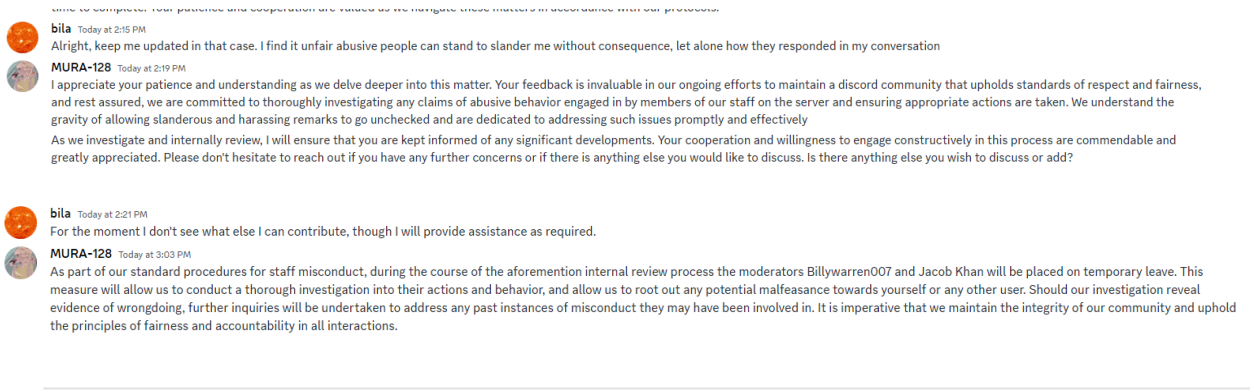
Lastly concerning the behavior of other staff members, we take such matters seriously and will investigate them separately, thoroughly, and promptly

bila Today at 2:07 PM
In regards to the harssment allegations one only needs to look at the server's history, as my posts remain. However, I do have a legal case proving my innocence.
https://workdrive.zoho.eu/file/2um428a8f146a5eab42de8015ed6b39e1dad7 Overall I'm fine with not returning to the server if it really is impossible, but I do want the staff members who I've demonstrated to be abusers to be kicked out of it.



MURA-128 Today at 2:13 PM
Thank you for sharing the link to your legal case. I will ensure it receives proper attention and review within our established processes. Rest assured, allegations of harassment are taken seriously, and appropriate actions will be taken based on the outcome of our investigation.

Regarding your request for the removal of specific staff members, I appreciate your concern. However, decisions regarding staff management are made through a comprehensive evaluation process, which may take time to complete. Your patience and cooperation are valued as we navigate these matters in accordance with our protocols.



bila Today at 2:15 PM
Alright, keep me updated in that case. I find it unfair abusive people can stand to slander me without consequence, let alone how they responded in my conversation

MURA-128 Today at 2:19 PM
I appreciate your patience and understanding as we delve deeper into this matter. Your feedback is invaluable in our ongoing efforts to maintain a discord community that upholds standards of respect and fairness, and rest assured, we are committed to thoroughly investigating any claims of abusive behavior engaged in by members of our staff on the server and ensuring appropriate actions are taken. We understand the gravity of allowing slanderous and harassing remarks to go unchecked and are dedicated to addressing such issues promptly and effectively

As we investigate and internally review, I will ensure that you are kept informed of any significant developments. Your cooperation and willingness to engage constructively in this process are commendable and greatly appreciated. Please don't hesitate to reach out if you have any further concerns or if there is anything else you would like to discuss. Is there anything else you wish to discuss or add?

bila Today at 2:21 PM
For the moment I don't see what else I can contribute, though I will provide assistance as required.

MURA-128 Today at 3:03 PM
As part of our standard procedures for staff misconduct, during the course of the aforemention internal review process the moderators Billywarren007 and Jacob Khan will be placed on temporary leave. This measure will allow us to conduct a thorough investigation into their actions and behavior, and allow us to root out any potential malfeasance towards yourself or any other user. Should our investigation reveal evidence of wrongdoing, further inquiries will be undertaken to address any past instances of misconduct they may have been involved in. It is imperative that we maintain the integrity of our community and uphold the principles of fairness and accountability in all interactions.

bila Today at 4:30 AM

Check and both users are still in the server

Your disclosure of the aforementioned moderators' current status within the server raises significant concerns as it implies the use of alternate Discord accounts, a direct violation of our strict rules on ban evasion. Such actions fundamentally compromise the integrity of our community and warrant immediate attention. In light of this revelation, the veracity of all your assertions is now under scrutiny. While we are open to considering independently verifiable evidence pertaining to off-server harassment, your testimony alone lacks the necessary credibility at this stage.

Furthermore, we've already taken at your, rather outlandish, claims of being on the receiving end of "harassment and abuse" from staff members Billywarren007 and Jacob Khan long before you chose me to be your next staff member to annoy with your yapping for a day or two. And I'm gonna be, it's difficult to as a team contain our laughter at the sheer absurdity of your accusations. To suggest that their interactions with you contained any malfeasance after the shit you pulled is not just laughable, it's downright delusional. Rest assured, our team has swiftly tossed your baseless complaints into the realm of irrelevance where they belong.

Hugs, kisses, from the woman you thought actually took you seriously from the beginning

Because your friend was trans phobic against me. And generally you're playing with the emotions of an austic, depressed person. Not a good look, but I supposed evil is stupid (edited)

MURA-128 Today at 6:30 AM
You are calling Billy transphobic becuase he looks at notes used a common turn of phrase and corrected himself when you informed him you are non-binary? am I getting that right?

Something that, you have not made clear in your profile what your identity or profile is, which discord does offer the ability to?

is that correct?

> is that correct?
> Now, I may just be a young, dumb woman of the south, but, I don't think that is transphobic, now, is it?

bila Today at 6:33 AM
Yes, you are dumb, since I picked they/them pronouns in the server

And the social media you are stalking me from makes several statements in regards to my gender

MURA-128 Today at 6:36 AM
Now let's make it make sense, either he was intentionally misgendering you, which, doesn't track with him immediately apologizing and correcting himself, or it was unintentional, which doesn't track with him "social media stalking and already knowing". Has my naive, country brain got that right?

brain got that right?

bila Today at 6:39 AM
I assume it was accidental, but still a shitty thing to say expecially so someone who don't know the gender of, and proof he is a petulant manchild just like you.

From someone from the south you like to say so much you sure lack manners

MURA-128 Today at 6:39 AM
Interesting you call me a petulant manchild, when I've already made it clear I'm a woman

Guess you're no better

bila Today at 6:41 AM
It's a gender netral term, unlike "man up" which is kinda misandrist as well. In any case, hardly the correct response to someone who has been nothing but reasonable

MURA-128 Today at 6:41 AM
Either both are gender neutral or neither are you can't pick and choose what use of "man" is gender neutral

So either, from your own words, he used a common turn of phrase regardless of your gender identity, or, you, already knowing I'm a woman, misgendered me, and misgendering a woman that you don't like what she's saying is kinda misogynistic

bila Today at 6:44 AM
Society at large does. And again you're missing the context, not that it matters since your deplorable behavior hasbee reccorded and sent to the appropriate persons (edited)

A quick google shows that womanchild, similar to "woman up" is a less used but existing variant, in fact womanchild is far more used than "woman up", making man up far more likely of the two to be used in a gender neutral context/irrespective of gender, in relation to something that you yourself admit you assumed was an accidental misgendering.

So just to confirm, you stand by the misogynistic act of misgendering a woman because you don't like what she is saying?

My bad then. Doesn't excuse everything else you are your cohots have done, which is unproffessional and clearly indicating you shouldn't be running a server. I have sent legal evidence, and you misgender me and act toxically.

I was never disruptive on your server, and you act like you can insult me at will

MURA-128 Today at 6:51 AM where have I misgendered you?

bila Today at 6:51 AM
Your friend

Arguably worse, since you put on a façade while he's at least honest about being a piece of shit with no manners.

I'll say it one last time: let me back to the server or I will promise that this abuse will be met with legal action (edited)

MURA-128 Today at 6:53 AM
And by your own metric, an accidental misgendering that was immediately rectified such as was performed is enough to contact glad, is your "accidental" misogyny enough I am warranted to contact a woman's rights group?

bila Today at 6:53 AM
You have the legal case, you know what I have been capable of doing. Continuing to act like children is not going to pay well for you (edited)

Here's the thing you don't seem to get, discord servers are within their right to ban anyone from them at will no questions asked, we gave a reason in accordance with our rules, but there is no legal doctrine stating that your participation in the server is a right, it's a privilege we revoked, simple as that. We aren't even required to give you a reason. we would have ignored you flat out if you didn't harass OSP and their producer Indigo

well, that and the ALTing

is clearly against our rules

so in the end, even if your original punishment was invalid

you already broke further rules you've condemned yourself through your own obsession

bila Today at 7:00 AM
And you by acting like toxic people. So I guess we'll both lose, since your actions are against the new TOS cracking down on abusive behaviour

MURA-128 Today at 7:04 AM
uh huh, a two way argument looks really good for a first offense CGV on harassment and bullying. btw, the slander you have already propagated against staff members theoretically looks really good in a countersuit for defamation

bila Today at 7:06 AM
"Slander"? You act exactly as you act, while you slander me on the prehistory message.

MURA-128 Today at 7:11 AM erroneous labelling of people as transphobes and harassers and attempts to ruin their reputation with such a claim via a lawsuit and social media action is, by all accounts, slanderous (edited)

bila Today at 7:12 AM
You people made mob posts, misgendered me and acted abusive. No slander here.

translation:
"You people informed the community of a banned user, rectified an accidental misgendering immediately after being made aware of your gender identity, and were a bit rude in DMs after you had already harrased the people we work for"

bila Today at 7:20 AM
"A bit rude", uh? Guess you really are a sociopath, since gaslighting, abusive behaviour and try to justify DEATH THREATS only register as "bit rude"

MURA-128 Today at 7:23 AM
Ok lets see here, 1: Lying to you about taking this seriously isn't gaslighting, it's lying. 2: I fully admit I was rude, I hardly count this two way argument as abusive behavior, as it is well known abuse is an ongoing and repeating cycle, not just one conversation in the span on 24 hours. and 3: Nowhere did I justify death threats. I accused you of fabricating them as you have provided no independently confirmable evidence they exist, and I told you if you do provide evidence they come from users on the server they'd be punished accordingly

> MURA-128 Today at 7:31 AM
> I've made myself very clear if you can prove to us that death threats are coming from our server and show us who is sending them that those people will be punished to the full extent of our rules > until then, we, legitimately, can't do anything about it, if it is even true

This whole ordeal has made me very depressed. If I die my family will sue Overly Sarcastic Productions.

An informant shared with us the following additional Twitter thread compiling Carlos's abuses very recently. It corroborates a lot of the behavior already observed and experienced as a pattern:
